Topic: The diagram below shows how bees produce honey. Summarise the information by selecting and reporting the main features, and make comparisons where relevant.

The diagram shows how bees make honey.

Overall, it is clear that there are eight main stages in this natural process, starting with bees leaving the hive and ending with the honey being sealed in wax. Meanwhile, the first three stages happen outside the hive, while the last five take place inside it.

Looking first at the early stages, worker bees fly out of the hive to look for flowers. When they find the flowers, they collect nectar from them and keep it in a special stomach. After that, they go back to the hive and pass the nectar to house bees, which is the fourth stage.

Turning to the final stages, the house bees put the nectar into the honeycomb cells and move their wings quickly to send air over them. This moving air makes the water in the nectar evaporate. As a result, the nectar slowly becomes thicker and turns into honey. Finally, the cells are covered with wax, which is the end of the whole process.
