Topic: What are some of the advantages and disadvantages of working from home?

It is often argued that working from home has become common in recent years. From my perspective, this trend has both significant merits and drawbacks. This essay will discuss both sides of this issue.

To begin with, one major advantage is saving time on daily commuting. A good example of this can be observed in Japan, where many office workers do not need to spend two hours on crowded trains every morning. Additionally, people can spend more time with their family members at home.

Despite these benefits, there are significant drawbacks. One crucial downside is that employees may feel lonely without direct human interaction. For instance, many workers report feeling isolated when they work in a room alone all day. Moreover, it is difficult to separate work from personal life.

In conclusion, although the topic presents several advantages such as saving commute time and spending time with family, the disadvantages including feeling isolated and working long hours should not be overlooked.

Topic: More and more young people are using smartphones today. What are some reasons for this? What problem does this cause?

It is often argued that many young people use smartphones for a long time every day. This essay will discuss the reasons for this issue and provide my perspective on how to address it.

To begin with, smartphones provide easy access to social media and video games. A good example of this can be observed in Japan, where many teenagers play mobile games during their free time. Additionally, smartphones make daily communication with friends very convenient.

Turning to the problems caused by this trend. Firstly, excessive smartphone use can cause physical health issues. For instance, sitting in front of a screen for hours leads to serious eye fatigue. Secondly, students often waste time and lose focus on their study.

In conclusion, I firmly believe that the main reasons are easy communication and entertaining apps. Overall, I am convinced that health problems and lower academic performance are major concerns.

3: 問題解決 (Why does this happen? What can we do to solve it?)

Topic: Traffic congestion is a major problem in many cities. Why does this happen? What can we do to solve it?

It is often argued that heavy traffic congestion affects many modern cities today. This essay will discuss the underlying causes of this problem and propose some effective solutions.

To begin with, one of the primary causes of this problem is the increasing number of private cars on the road. A good example of this can be observed in Japan, where many commuters prefer driving their own cars to work. Another contributing factor is insufficient public transportation routes in suburbs.

To address these issues, one effective measure could be improving public transit services. For instance, governments can build more subway lines and reduce train fares to encourage public transport. Secondly, city authorities should promote bicycle use by making dedicated bike lanes.

In conclusion, the problems resulting from heavy traffic congestion are largely due to excessive private car use and poor transit networks. If appropriate solutions such as expanding public transportation and promoting bicycle use are implemented, however, the situation can be significantly improved.

4: 両方の意見 + 自分の意見 (Discuss both these views and give your opinion)

Topic: Some people think children should study online, while others believe they should go to traditional schools. Discuss both views and give your opinion.

It is often argued that online learning and classroom learning offer different benefits for students. From my perspective, I strongly agree with the latter opinion. This essay will discuss both perspectives and why I hold this viewpoint.

On the one hand, some might claim that online learning is convenient because students can study anytime at home. A good example of this can be observed in Japan, where many students use tablets to review lessons at home. Additionally, online classes save travel time for families.

On the other hand, opponents assert that attending traditional schools is more valid. Firstly, children learn social communication skills by talking with classmates face to face. For instance, group projects teach students teamwork and cooperation. Secondly, teachers can help students directly in classrooms.

In my opinion, although both sides present valid arguments, I personally believe that classroom education is better because social interaction is essential for young children. While some might have opposing viewpoints, I am convinced that the importance of face-to-face learning and social development should not be overlooked.

5: 賛成反対タイプ (What extent do you agree or disagree?)

Topic: Fast food should be taxed heavily by the government. To what extent do you agree or disagree?

It is often argued that governments should increase taxes on fast food products. From my perspective, I strongly agree with this proposal. This essay will discuss why I hold this viewpoint.

Some might claim that taxing fast food harms low-income families because fast food is cheap and fast. A good example of this can be observed in Japan, where busy workers often rely on fast food meals. Additionally, fast food restaurants provide many jobs for young people.

However, I assert that taxing fast food is necessary to protect public health. Firstly, high taxes reduce the consumption of unhealthy food among teenagers. For instance, higher prices encourage people to choose healthier meals such as fresh vegetables. Secondly, governments can use tax revenue to support health education. As can be seen in Japan, public health programs help reduce long-term medical costs.

In conclusion, I firmly believe that fast food should be taxed heavily by the government. Overall, although some people might have opposing views, I am convinced that the importance of public health promotion should not be overlooked.
